

For over two decades as a leading voice and face in the fashion industry, Emme is the iconic world's first curvy supermodel. With the conviction that beauty comes in all shapes and sizes, Emme has paved the way and given women the platform to feel beautiful and empowered.

A TV personality, model, mom, author, brand spokesperson, creative director of her clothing lines, cancer survivor, lecturer and globally recognized women's advocate for positive body image and self-esteem, Emme's message is clear – to awaken the inner magnificence inherent in each of us, to be whole. She is the first model invited to speak before a Congressional subcommittee in Washington, D.C. with a mission to increase public awareness of eating and body image disorders.

There's a lot to celebrate in 2017! EMME STYLE: Remarkable people. Empowering stories, is AdLarge's podcast launch partner for their CABANA platform; Emme's 5th book: Chicken Soup For The Soul Curvy and Confident: 101 Stories of Loving Yourself and Your Body, encourages women to embrace their bodies once and for all; and FashionWithoutLimits.org: Changing The Face of Fashion, is an inclusive fashion design accreditation initiative, teaching future fashion designers to design well styled and fitting clothes for women size 0-24 and provides body image and self esteem programs as key tools supporting the initiative.

In addition, Emme has authored four other books, "True Beauty", "Life's Little Emergencies", co-author of Morning Has Broken and co-author of her children's book "What Are You Hungry For?"

Emme is often consulted and interviewed in the media on eating disorders and body image, fashion trends and model diversity, as well as surviving cancer and women's health. She is consistently booked to appear on such media outlets as: Today Show, GMA, CBS The Early Show, CNN, MSNBC, HLN, OWN, FOX News, OMG! Insider, Huff Post Live, Access Hollywood, Entertainment Tonight, and others to share her point of view on these topics. Her work receives national and international coverage from the NYTimes, Women's Wear Daily, People Magazine, Glamour Magazine, Marie Claire, TIME Magazine, WSJ, Yahoo!Style, PeopleStyleWatch, USAToday BusinessInsider.com, Vogue Italia, MTV, The DailyMail, among many others.

She has twice been selected to People Magazine's "50 Most Beautiful People" and Ladies' Home Journal chose her as one of the "Most Important Women in America" and one of the "Most Fascinating Women of the Year." These accolades are truly representative of her tireless commitment to advocacy, but it doesn't stop there: she has also been honored as one of Glamour magazine's "Women of the Year" and as one of Biography magazine's "25 Most Influential Women", Emme is the current past chair ambassador to The National Eating Disorders Association, honorary board member to Project Heal, and donates her time to the Girl Scouts of America.

Emme's passion for nature and fitness fuels her active lifestyle, which includes triathlons, rowing, snowshoeing, boogie boarding, hiking, yoga and loves swimming. Today, Emme and her daughter live in Northern New Jersey. For more information, please visit www.emmestyle.com and join @Supermodelemme on all social media.
